Total Work of Art

Richard Wagner referred to his operatic works as gesamtkunstwerk, meaning “the total work of art.” This term not only applies to Wagner’s expansive works, but to opera in general as it encompasses all the classical arts; symphony, vocal music, visual art, theater, and ballet. Opéra Louisiane is committed to presenting the total work of art through a professional main stage season and an educational Young People’s Opera Program that presents free opera to thousands of students each year.

The City Is Behind Us

Opéra Louisiane was founded with the support of Mayor Melvin “Kip” Holden, the Metro City Council, the Baton Rouge Area Foundation, the Arts Council of Greater Baton Rouge, and the generosity of individual donors throughout the Capital City. They recognized that it is time for Baton Rouge to rise up as a thriving arts community, unite with our sister cities, and promote Louisiana as a state that values the arts.

“Opera allows the human voice to express emotion so that everyone understands it, regardless of language, or background.

Opera is for all.”

-Leanne P. Clement, Opéra Louisiane Executive Director
